

Henrik Ancher-Jensen

Senior Vice President, Agilent President, Order Fulfillment and Supply Chain

Henrik Ancher-Jensen is senior vice president, Agilent, and president, Order Fulfillment and Supply Chain (OFS). He is responsible for leading the effort to leverage Agilent's strength in manufacturing, procurement and logistics across the company's businesses.

Prior to this role, Ancher-Jensen was corporate vice president of Global Operations at Dako (now an Agilent Technologies company), where he had global responsibility for manufacturing, supply chain, logistics, customer service and global IT. Preceding that position, he served as Dako's vice president of Global Supply Chain and CIO, where he optimized manufacturing operations, re-engineered customer service business processes, and developed and implemented a new global IT strategy resulting in a standardized technical infrastructure and significant cost savings.

Ancher-Jensen's experience spans several earlier executive positions directing global supply chain, global business process optimization and global IT at Chr. Hansen, Inc., a leading food industry company, and at Deloitte Consulting/ICS where he provided client counsel on strategy and business process development.

Ancher-Jensen holds a BA in Economics from Aarhus University, Denmark.

