Time: 12:00 – 1:30 p.m. EDT

Hosted by

Lab Manager

Automated liquid handling and dispensing products are quickly replacing many of the repetitive tasks once performed manually, reducing user-related errors and increasing precision, accuracy, and throughput. However, there are many choices available, and managers must consider the correct processes to automate, the level of automation required, and how to best implement an automated workflow. Join our panel of experts, and gain insights into the pros and cons of various systems and how they can effectively be integrated into your lab's workflow.

As an attendee, you will learn more about:

- The latest available liquid handling systems
- How to implement an automated solution to your current workflow
- Practical and financial considerations when investing in automated liquid handling technology
